POSTOFFICE FACTS GIVEN BY HISTORIAN

Says Glendale Had Postoffice Way Back in
Year 1884

KNOWN AS VERDUGO

Later Changed to Mason and at Last to Glendale

Ever since the report was published that Glendale was to have an independent postoffice and that D. Ripley Jackson was appointed postmaster Glendaleans have been pleased to term Mr. Jackson as Glendale's first postmaster. The facts are that Glendale, many years ago, had an independent postoffice and there were several postmasters before Mr. Jackson.

One old settler visited the Glendale Daily Press and said that when he moved here in 1884, this city was a small settlement, and had an independent postoffice known as Verdugo. S. I. Mayo was postmaster and conducted the office in a little shack in an orange grove next door to the old Sherer ranch. This was later moved to the corner of Second street and Verdugo road. After the office was moved, Rachel Sherer, sister of J. C. Sherer, the present city treasurer, was appointed postmistress.

At about this time the name was changed to Glendale. Several complications arose over the new name, as it was said that there was a postoffice in Colorado named Glendale and the postoffice department, contrary to the wishes of the people here, changed the name to Mason and for several years, during the entire Cleveland administration, was known by that name.

The postoffice in what is now known as Tropic was started about the time the people of Glendale through their representative in congress succeeded in having the name Glendale restored. Later the Glendale postoffice was conducted in Dutton's grocery. Postmaster Dutton was succeeded by Mrs. Mable Hackman, who later became Mrs. M. L. Tight. She conducted the postoffice in Fraley's grocery store at the corner of Glendale avenue and Wilson street. During her tenure of office a cement building was erected on Glendale avenue between Broadway and Wilson street and the postoffice quarters were installed there.

Asa Farnet was the next postmaster and his appointment has gone down in the annals of Glendale history as one of the cleverest feats of local politics of the generation. When Mr. Farnet was holding the office, Glendale's postoffice was taken into the Los Angeles postoffice and made a substation. This was done in 1908 at the request of the people of Glendale, and not against their wishes, as has been said.

In 1908, Motley Flint was postmaster of Los Angeles and he told the people of this city that if they would become part of the Los Angeles postoffice, he would promise them daily delivery. Acting on Mr. Flint's suggestion, petitions requesting that Glendale be a part of the Los Angeles postoffice were circulated and signed by a large majority. Glendale soon became a unit in the Los Angeles system and Mr. Flint kept his promise by giving delivery. This is the history of the Glendale postoffice.

HISTORIC FLAG IN BANK WINDOW

A very interesting window display in the First Savings bank on East Broadway is attracting attention. The window is decorated with the peace flag that floated over the Pan-American exposition building in Buffalo, N. Y., when President McKinley was assassinated. In a speech on that day, President McKinley proclaimed universal peace and good will to all nations. The flag was loaned by Edward J. Sullivan. There are also two very fine photographs, one of William McKinley and the other of President Warren G. Harding.

AMERICA MUST NOT BE USED UP

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—"We are the one nation left and civilization cannot afford to see us used up," Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California declared today in a second statement issued by him in opposition to the new quadruple alliance for peace on the Pacific.

The present conference in Washington was possible only because our country had been left free and independent and was not a part of the European scheme of things," he commented.

Forgetting the Law and Upsetting It Stirs Writer's Ire

Mocking the constitution—that the manner in which an editorial in this paper tonight refers to those who circumvent the law—particularly the 18th amendment. The New Year's orgies in New York are taken as a basis for the remarks.

In his column Henry James writes of the support of the motion picture industry by the bankers. Motley H. Flint in a recent address stated that it is the duty of the banking industry to protect the motion picture industry.

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" asks "What for?" Della Stewart in "Just Between Ourselves" says "Good reading can be one of the greatest sources of comfort and growth."

Dr. Frank Crane writes on wanting things in his interesting style.

Turn to the editorial page this evening and you will find a variety of thought expressed that will serve you well. Its a good page to make a habit of reading.

CURFEW LAW WILL INVOKED BY CHIEF

Boys and Girls Will Be Sent to Juvenile Hall
in City

During the past week it has been necessary for the local police to send six minor boys and girls to the juvenile hall in Los Angeles at the request of the parents, who said they could do nothing with them. Several girls were among those turned over to the juvenile hall. They persisted in roaming the streets at night and refused to obey their parents. They will be prosecuted as incorrigibles.

Juvenile officers in Los Angeles have told Chief of Police Martin that in cases where boys or girls are found roaming around the streets at night and are violating the laws, they are to be sent to juvenile hall at once.

Mrs. Smith, of that department, says that conditions among the boys and girls of the county are getting worse instead of better and something must be done at once.

Chief Martin says that he is seriously considering reviving the curfew law. Glendale had such an ordinance at one time and from records here and in other cities where this means of keeping the boys and girls off the street at night has been used, it is evident that the ordinance is a success. This seems to be the only method of curbing the activities of the boys and girls, and Chief Martin is making plans for an early installation of the law.

SCHOOL BOND ISSUE BRINGS BIG PREMIUM

Issue of $260,000 Sold
Saturday to Three Firms

PREMIUM IS $28,888

Believed Now That High School Bonds Bring Premium

The $260,000 bond issue for grammar schools of Glendale was sold Saturday to Bond & Goodman, the Tucker Co., and the Blythe Witter Investment Co. They reported to the board of education that their attorneys have reported to them favorably on the issue, and they have written the board of supervisors requesting them to print the bonds without delay, stating that as soon as the bonds are printed they will deposit the money.

The sales netted $288,888, $28,888 more than the face value, and they bear 6 per cent interest.

"Taxpayers will be interested in the fact," says Superintendent Richardson D. White, "because it means that the bond issue will cost them nothing the first year, and the premium will pay about 50 per cent of the sum needed for redemption and interest the second year."

The bond market is very good now, Mr. White says, and it is probable that the high school bonds will also bring a premium.

BUSINESS WOMEN TO MEET TUESDAY

Will Christen New Rooms
in Coker & Taylor
Building

Notice to members of the Business and Professional Women's club is being circulated urging them to attend the meeting of the club which will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 in its new club home upstairs in the Coker & Taylor building at 209 South Brand boulevard.

It will be the christening of the new quarters. A shower of towels and kitchen furnishings will be welcome but is not obligatory, because the idea is to welcome every member whether she comes with a gift or not.

At this meeting, which is for members alone, the date of the formal opening reception when the club rooms will be opened to the general public will be set.

The duration of its friendly spirit toward the enterprise the Loomis-Schuck Music company has offered to loan, for the use of the club Tuesday night and the balance of the week, a Pathe phonograph.

CHAMBER TO HAVE ANNUAL SESSION

The annual meeting of the chamber of commerce membership will be held Tuesday night, at which time the annual report of the secretary will be read and plans for the year discussed.

The year just closed has been an active one and Secretary Jas. M. Rhoades and his assistant, E. F. Sanders, have a report of work that has been completed. The stockholders of the Citizens Building company will also hold a meeting in the chamber of commerce on Tuesday night for the purpose of electing directors for the coming year.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS FOR BEING DRUNK

Saturday night a report came to the police station that there were three or four intoxicated men at the corner of Adams and Colorado streets who were creating a disturbance. Motorcycle officers Trautwein and Collins responded and were followed by Captain McGuire and Patrolmen Stein and Balthasar.

Vernon Holt, Jesse Wright, Thos. Delehanty and Earl Inman were taken to the police station. Delehanty was released and the others were booked on a charge of being drunk and disturbing the peace. They were locked in firehouse No. 1 and appeared before Judge Lowe this morning, who fined them $15 each.

MRS. JACK DE SAULLES TO WED AGAIN

Mrs. Bianca Errazuriz De Saulles is soon to marry again. The news of her new romance came over the cables from Santiago, Chile. Her fiancé is Fernando Santa Cruz, a young engineer. No date has been set for the wedding. During the past four years Mrs. De Saulles has been living in Chile with her family, which is wealthy. Two members of the family have been presidents of Chile. Little Jack De Saulles, whose father, John Longer De Saulles, former football star and real estate broker, was shot so dramatically August 3, 1917, is with her. Mrs. De Saulles won great sympathy at her trial, which led to an acquittal at Mineola, L. I., in the early fall of 1917, by her beauty, her tragic demeanor and the story of her unhappy married life. She was sixteen when she married De Saulles. Little Jack was the unwitting cause of his father's death by childish prattle to his mother of other women whom the dashing former football star had taught him to call "mother."

The little fellow told her that his father had told him that he must learn to love his mother's rivals as much as "Bumpy," which was his mother's pet name. Pale as chiseled marble and impassive as a statue, Mrs. De Saulles went through a sensational trial as though in a trance.

FIFTEEN YEARS OF NEWBERRY SAYS HE NAVAL HOLIDAY NOW PLANNED DID NOT KNOW OF EXPENDITURE

Five Great Powers Add
Five Year Term to Get
Best Results

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The five great powers are to bind themselves to a program of naval reduction and limitation for fifteen years by the terms of the naval limitation treaty.

The duration of the treaty, as completed by the naval experts, is fifteen years instead of the ten-year period of the naval holiday, it was said. This is to give the naval holiday sufficient time to be put into practical effect, it was explained, and to allow the naval establishments of the powers to be put on the replacement tonnage ratio basis which has been agreed upon, after the conclusion of the holiday.

DRY LEAGUE WILL FIGHT IN CALIF.

Expect to Make Great Progress in State This Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The Anti-Saloon League plans to seal the last crevices of John Barleycorn's coffin before this year is ended.

A program outlined today to the United Press by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the drys in the United States, calls for a fight to enact dry enforcement codes in the few states having none; strengthening weak codes in other states, and pushing some new measures through congress.

Particular attention will be paid Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Maryland, California and Missouri, Wheeler said. Under the 18th amendment states are given concurrent powers of enforcement and have the same obligations to force national prohibition that congress has.

"California's enforcement code has been held up by a referendum and comes to a vote this morning," Wheeler said, "and the Anti-Saloon forces will be in the thick of the fight."

M'CUMBER NAMED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Senator Porter J. McCumber, North Dakota, today was formally selected as chairman of the senate finance committee, succeeding the late Boies Penrose, Pennsylvania.

BOY BURNED BY LIVE WIRE LOST FINGER

Peter Hilton, 13, is Hor-ribly Burned on Saturday

IS SENT TO HOSPITAL

Edison Co. Makes Immediate Repairs of Broken Line

While playing in the Verdugo wash, Peter Hilton, 13, living at 605 West Lexington avenue, took hold of the loose end of a live electric wire and was severely burned about the hands and arms. One finger was burned off and his right hand and arm were horribly burned. It is said that 2600 volts of electricity entered the boy's body. The quick action of young Hilton's brother in kicking the wire from the boy's hand saved his life.

The injured lad was taken to the Jessup dairy on San Fernando road and a hurry call sent to the police station for an ambulance and Pulliam and Kiefer's ambulance responded and the boy was taken to the Glendale sanitarium and hospital.

Superintendent of Plant and Production District was notified that the wire was down and he found that the wire was one of those carrying current for the Edison Electric company and not a city wire. The Edison company was notified and the break repaired. The Hilton boy was taken to his home today.

It is said that the boy and several companions were in the wash setting traps for small animals and that he did not notice the sputtering end of the wire and took it in his hand to clear a place for a trap.

POLICE REBEL AT DOING ZOO DUTY

Lost Dogs, Cats, Horses, in Public Pound to Be Claimed

Glendale's police have gone in for menagerie stuff. The department has in the city pound a collier pup, an Alford dog, an Angora cat and a buckskin horse, all waiting to be claimed. They are holding these animals in addition to a bicycle and various articles that have been recovered during the past month.

Chief of Police Martin says that he wishes the owners of the animals would claim them as he is undecided as to his title, whether he is chief of police or custodian of a zoo. Not only is the chief anxious to find the owners but the officers who are caring for the animals are getting tired of the task. They claim that it is no fun to wait for a horse and wait for a couple of dogs in addition to their other duties.

HOUSE ROBBERS IN CITY AGAIN

House-breakers visited Glendale Saturday night and robbed the entrance had been gained through a window of a screen porch at the rear of the home. One robber had evidently entered through the window and opened the door, admitting his confederates. They secured a typewriter, an electric percolator, gold necklace, suit of clothes and an English traveling bag with a complete set of toilet articles. Detective Delgado and Herda are working on the case.

THOUSANDS VISIT SHOE STYLE SHOW CHICAGO TODAY

Things Going "Foot to Foot" Where Real
Feet Grow

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Cinderellas—300 gorgeous ones—put the kick in the nation's shoe style show here today. Thousands flocked to the mammoth coliseum, to attend the national shoe retailers' exhibition and departed without seeing a shoe.

Perfect 3-A's, model 4-B's, plain 5's and 6's on the EE last, were wafted down the mile of runway by the strains of a lively march. It took a whole year to carefully footpick the models from all over the United States. All of them furnished a thrill, even as Cinderella, two minutes before the midnight gong clanged.

Manufacturers, realizing that their show was too successful and that many dealers would leave with a most minute conception of every detail of milady's apparel but the shoe, started side shows. At these exhibitions the model was screened—albeit the foot and a very small portion of the ankle. Here, dealers from all over the country picked out the shoes they will wear in the springtime.

The season's shoe and slipper will be neater and simpler, lacking beads, straps and buckles, and the price a trifle less.

The purpose of the style show was to educate the public in methods of choosing correct fitting shoes.

Miss Marjorie McGregor personally filled shocking stockings to demonstrate that correct shoe fitting starts with the hose.

"Shoes and stockings go foot and foot," she explained.

SECOND PRIZE IS REFUSED BY CHAMBER

Portland Float Had Ad-

Rules

That Glendale is not willing to sit meekly by and accept second prize in the recent tournament of roses at Pasadena, after this opinion of newspapers, designer of the float winning first prize and designers of other floats, contend that the award was not backed up by merit and fact.

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce, acting on instructions from the board of directors, has written to officials of the tournament that Glendale declines to accept second prize. This letter was mailed to the executive committee of the tournament of roses and gives the views of not only Glendale, but a score of other towns of Southern California who contend Glendale had the most beautiful and original float in this or any other tournament.

The letter of protest was written after a thorough investigation of the award. As charged, the prize winning float disqualified itself by displaying an advertising sign, a direct violation of the rules. Following is the letter of the chamber of commerce:

Gentlemen:—As representatives of the Glendale chamber of commerce who are responsible for Glendale entering a float in the

GLENDALE GROWTH GREATER THAN LOS ANGELES

Percentage Basis Shows
This City First in United States

Superintendent Richardson D. White was greatly interested in the comparative statement of the building permits for the year, issued in various cities of California, including Glendale, which was published last week in the Los Angeles Express, and he took the trouble to work out the percentage from the basis of population.

Glendale's building record for the year was, roughly speaking, $5,000,000. Santa Monica, which comes nearest Glendale in size, had just 50 per cent of that amount.

The building record of Los Angeles was $82,000,000, but when the percentage of population was figured, if Los Angeles had kept pace with Glendale, its record would have been $140,000,000.

Proof has been given heretofore that Southern California leads the United States in building operations and these statistics show that Glendale leads Southern California.

This fact, Mr. White believes, had considerable to do with the creation of the excellent demand for school bonds of Glendale, which made the $260,000 issue for city schools bring premium of $28,888 when sold Saturday.

I KNOW THY WORKS IS SERMON THEME

Rev. Edmonds Takes Subject from Rev. 3:15: 16 Sunday

Rev. W. E. Edmonds at the Presbyterian church preached Sunday morning to a very full congregation concerning Enthusiasm, from the words: "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot; I would that thou wert cold or hot. So, then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth." (Rev. 3:15-16.)

It is strange that people like enthusiasm everywhere but in the church. Folks go all lengths of energy and interest for every sort of object and think it all right, except in the pulpit. It is time in this day that we bring in truth with all push and earnestness. When one brings such a message as the gospel of Jesus Christ he should have enthusiasm. They tell us, "Just keep right in the middle of the road, or you will offend." But the gospel is meant to offend. "Because thou art lukewarm, I will spue thee out of my mouth." There isn't another text so pungent in the Bible. There are things that have no two sides—they are right or wrong, nothing else. These are days when men are required to state where they stand.

In human affairs there has been no nobler passion than self-sacrificing love.

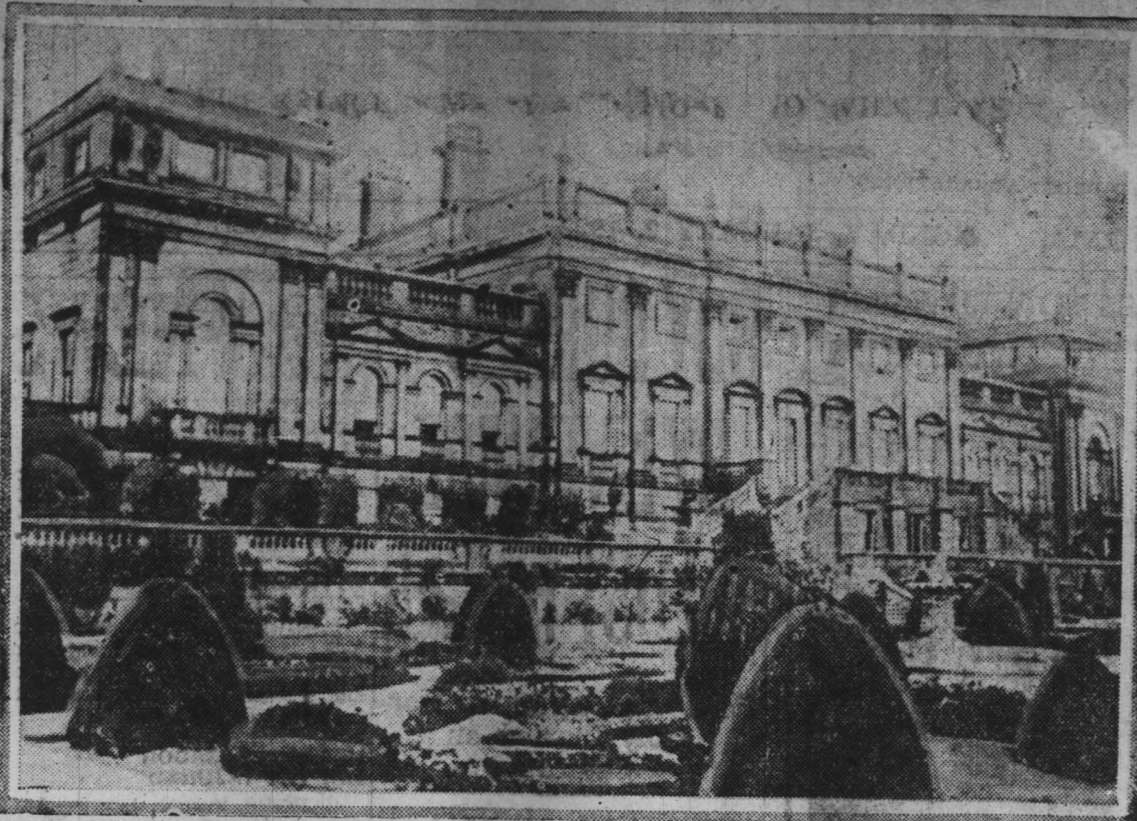

Enthusiasm inspires amid severest trials. Not noise; it does not always have a voice, but it is in faith, in trust. And enthusiasm is the antidote to selfishness; when we have it, it is remarkable how little we think of taking things easy in such a day as this? It is the condition of heart makes the enthusiasm. How much do you love Him? That is the measure. You can't put your devotion in a box and nail it up; you must use it.

Enthusiasm is a source of missionary power. A business man who had made a world tour met a young man and told him the country to which he was a bad place to go as a missionary was a bad place to live; no man could live long there except the native-born. "But say, are there men there?" "Yes, millions." "Then there is where I shall go."

COLSON'S TO HAVE SON AS VISITOR

George Colson of 405 East Harvard street had the pleasure of welcoming to Southern California Sunday, his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Colson, who will fill a six-day engagement this week in a Los Angeles theater, where they are putting on a musical skit. They go from Los Angeles to Long Beach and from there to Salt Lake City and across the continent to New York, where they have a 12-week engagement. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Colson for two or three days this week.

Change Your Name If You Want Another

After all, if you go through life with a name that doesn't please you or bring you luck, it's your own fault. There's nothing to prevent your changing it. The law doesn't care what you call yourself. And the people who groan through life under the burden of absurd names bestowed on them by their parents have only themselves to blame. If you take a fancy to another name you can adopt it and throw away your old one.

Perhaps the manufactured name will bring you luck, as in the reported case of Dennis O'Brien. As Dennis O'Brien, it is said by some, he was an unsuccessful prospector and a clipper of horses. As John K. Stewart a man said to be the same person became the founder and president of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Company of Chicago, and left a $5,000,000 estate when he died.

According to the story, which is denied in some quarters, his method of manufacturing a new name was peculiar. Stewart was the name of the lawyer through whom he patented his first invention, a horse clipping machine. John K. was the name of a race horse he fancied. And the combination proved a winning one.

People apply to the courts for permission to change their names, but it isn't necessary. It's only a prudent precaution in case your grandfather abroad should leave you a legacy, making it necessary for you to prove that your original name was Abraham Zwetschenstiel and not Aubrey O'Brien. But any Zwetschenstiel is at liberty to change his name to O'Brien, without bothering the courts about it. That's one of the privileges we inherit from English common law. It's very different in European countries, where habitual police surveillance and the passport system would cause a change of name to bring a hornet's nest about your ears.

It is customary to take your father's name. It is customary to eat pumpkin pie in December. But if you don't happen to like your father's name you're under no more obligation to use it than you are to eat pumpkin pie if it doesn't appeal to you. The court of appeals in New York settled that for all time in the case of Smith versus United States Casualty Company. Judge Vann, who penned the unanimous opinion, set forth some striking historical examples of changed names.

"A predecessor of Honore de Balzac," he wrote, "was born a Guez, which means beggar, and grew to manhood under that name. When he became conscious of his powers as a writer, he did not wish his works to be published under that humble name, so he selected the surname Balzac, from an estate that he owned."

"Voltaire, Moliere, Dante, Petrarch, Richelieu, Loyola, Erasmus and Linnaeus were assumed names. Napoleon Buonaparte changed his name after his amazing victories had lured him toward a crown and he wanted a grander name to aid his daring aspirations. The Duke of Wellington was not by blood a Wellesley, but a Cooley, having as father, Richard Cooley, having assumed the name of a relative named Wesley, which was afterwards expanded to Wellesley."

In the days when actors were legally classified as "vagabonds," it was customary for every player to assume a "stage name" and the custom continues well into the present era. But in these days, when actors and actresses are invited to tea in the best houses, they generally take their real names to the stage with them. Lou Tellegen however, was originally Isidor Louis Bernard Edmund van Domine. Sir Henry Irving, who did more than any other actor to bring about the social recognition of his profession, aided by the good will of the Prince of Wales, "the first gentleman of Europe," who afterwards reigned as Edward VII, was born Broadbri and adopted Irving as a stage name. Maurice Barrymore, the handsome father of the present generation of Barrymores, also bore a pseudonym, his original name having been Herbert Blythe.

Artemus Ward and Mark Twain were literary examples of adopted names. Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, was originally John Rowlands. For euphony in authorship, James B. Taylor became Bayard Taylor, and James B. Matthews became Brander Matthews. Ulysses S. Grant became Hiram S. Grant, Grover Cleveland as Stephen G. Cleveland, and Whitelaw Reid as Jacob W. Reid.

There is also the historical case of Thomas W. Wilson, president of the United States, as Woodrow Wilson.

ORANGE GROVE IS MOVING RAPIDLY

Roy D. King Tells of Progress Being Made on Sixth

Everything is "looking up" in connection with the Norton Orange Grove tract, located on Sixth street, which is being handled by Roy D. King of 106 East California street. A street has been cut through this tract running north and south, this being 60 feet in width and having standard improvements, such as grading and macadam roadway, sidewalk and curbing.

There are 30 lots in this tract. Up to this time 15 of these lots have been disposed of, the remainder constituting a unit that is now being placed on the market. The lots in this tract are 60 by 203 feet in size and are priced right.

Among the purchasers of property in this tract is Dr. Stratton, a prominent physician and surgeon of Oakland. Two lots were secured by Dr. Stratton, who expects to begin the construction of a beautiful home on the property as soon as arrangements can be made.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Groves of Long Beach have also purchased property in this tract and will build on their holdings in the near future, as will Miss Lydia A. French and Nellie Hindman of Glendale. Other purchasers in this tract are T. S. Caldwell, A. W. Huskin and Peter L. Ferry of Glendale.

The poultryer had just received some live chickens in a crate from the country.

The crate was just being lifted off a cart as Mrs. Newlywed entered to buy the Sunday dinner.

"If you like, mam," offered the poultryer, "I'll kill and dress a couple of these chickens and send them over to your house."

"Well," replied the young housekeeper, hesitating cautiously, "if you are positive they are fresh, you may."

Brown and his wife were having a lively little family spat because he was going to play a little game of poker with the boys for the third time in one week.

"You never spend an evening at home," Mrs. Brown informed him. "It's just go, go, go! Why, if you ever spent an evening at home I believe I'd drop dead!"

"Well, it's no use in talking like that," Brown insisted. "You can't bribe me."

The Poor Inventor

THE originator of an idea has wasted his time unless he is able to interest some one else in his creation—unless that some one else can enjoy it or benefit by it.

It is because thoughts are so freely radiated—so easily exchanged and spread broadcast—that this country is a fine place to live in.

Consider the advertisements in this paper. They are thoughts. Many of them are thoughts conceived with you in mind—thoughts for your comfort—your pleasure—your health—your satisfaction. Thoughts that will save you time and money.

Do you take full advantage of them? Advertising is the voice of American business.

SECOND PRIZE IS REFUSED BY CITY

Tournament of Roses held in Pasadena on the second day of January this year, and in response to what we consider a demand from members of this chamber, we feel that it is necessary for us to obtain from your executive body some information as to how the floats in the Tournament parade were judged, how and why the gentlemen who were given this important honorary position came to their decision and decided Glendale had the second best float when on every hand along the line of march, comparing the applause that every float received, the expression displayed by the people who viewed the parade, by the men who entered the other floats Glendale in our opinion and, as far as we have been able to determine after very thorough investigation and consideration, was given first place by the people but second by the judges.

We invite your attention to the fact that it was with considerable effort that we obtained permission to enter this float. Glendale had won two years in succession. The people of Glendale were willing to rest on their laurels, entering a small float at a small cost and let someone else enjoy the privilege of winning. We were, however, positively assured by some members or committees of your association that Glendale would be given the prize every year continually if they won it according to the rules of the Tournament of Roses and on the points on which all floats are judged. We cannot help but say that from appearances your judges by their decision positively reversed their guarantee.

It has always been our understanding that these floats are judged by their beauty, the amount and number of flowers used, the originality of design, the picture it may tell, the manner in which it is constructed, the detail with which the thought and idea is carried out and the ability shown in telling the story or visualizing the picture it represents. Certainly anyone will admit the fact that in all points with the exception of two, Glendale had no competition in her exhibit and on the possible two, it is a matter of opinion these two points on which the other float might have won, might have been first, beauty of the flowers used in the float, second, cost of same. After these two points are taken into consideration comes the straw that breaks the camel's back. We have always understood, have been told repeatedly and cautioned regarding exhibiting any sign or advertising matter entered on a float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses. The float awarded first prize this year carried a painted advertising sign, therefore, disqualifying itself and absolutely forfeiting any possible chance to win a prize. Perhaps you can tell us how your judges got over this seemingly unmountable objection.

It was rumored that, owing to the fact that Glendale had taken first prize the last two years, that it was a foregone conclusion before the floats were ever presented for inspection that under no consideration should Glendale be given the first prize for the third year. It is not our habit to pay much attention to "street corner" gossip and rumors, but, in the face of what actually took place, we are led to believe that there are good reasons for these rumors. What Glendale gained or lost other years should have no bearing whatever on the verdict rendered on this year's float. If we had the best float in that parade, and the Los Angeles "Times" says, "The Glendale float was the largest in the parade and one of the most unique and detailed achievements of floral adaptation," we are entitled to first place, regardless of what happened in past years.

Do not think for a moment that Glendale has the wrong spirit in this matter. We are attempting to help one of the greatest attractions that Southern California has to be a great success, but in each year serious in judgment occur, as we see this one, it will not help to make your annual Tournament of Roses popular.

We do not envy Portland, we congratulate them and hope that they will return and bring other cities with them because from our observation, it may be necessary to get exhibits farther away from home in the years to come. We feel that any of the Southern California cities who saw the Glendale float and when they see that Glendale did not get the prize, they are most certainly going to say, "what's the use," and we cannot help but feel that they are practically expressing the unanimous sentiment of the Southern Californian cities.

We have received scores of expressions and letters denouncing the actions of the judges in this award and we believe our contentions and feelings are supported by public sentiment to such a degree as to warrant our decision which is backed by our entire people in advising you that in face of all we have mentioned in this letter, and many other things not mentioned, we respectfully decline to accept the second prize and request that you retain the same, as

CYCLONE PLAYS HAVOC IN BUFFALO

A cyclone which recently blew through Buffalo, N. Y., left in its wake hundreds of thousands of dollars in property damage. Many dwellings were completely destroyed and the storm, which came from Lake Erie, wrecked a number of vessels anchored in the harbor. The photograph on the left shows a house that was blown from its foundation and was stopped by two trees in its path. One of the strange features of the cyclone is shown in the illustration on the right. The house was blown from its foundation, but a picture hanging on the wall was left untouched.

CHURCH ELDERS DRINK VARNISH

Mistaken for Sacramental Wine, in Critical State

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 9.—Eight elders of the Seventh Reformed church here, who drank varnish stain which was mistaken for sacramental wine, were in a serious condition here today.

Service in the church yesterday morning came to an abrupt end and the congregation was thrown into confusion when John Riewald, an elder of the church, toppled over unconscious after sipping the supposed sacramental wine. Seven other communicants collapsed in rapid succession.

Riewald and M. Tereureit, prominent furniture dealer and the most serious condition. It is reported that a new elder took the varnish from the church storehouse, believing it to be wine.

TAG DAY SALE IS SATISFACTORY

After the day's receipts were checked up it was found that the tag day held Saturday for the benefit of the Volunteers of America netted the sum of $275. The first prize was won by little Dorothy Thompson, who secured $16.82 for her tags. Katherine Kitterman won second with $15.77, Louise Woodfill was third with $13.05, while Venessa Dewey took the fourth with $12.01. The fifth was won by Dorothy Hill and the sixth by Anna Batigan. "Honorable mention" must be made of the good work done by Margaret Hudson, Margaret Hamilton, and Genevieve Housman, all three of whom had within 15 cents of each other's amount.

We did not win this prize and do not care for it.

Yours very truly,
GLENDALE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

LONG BEACH MAN SCORES JUDGES

Glendale is not the only city that protested against the first prize going to Portland in the rose tournament, when popular vote awarded it to Glendale. Following is the letter written by G. M. Knapp, secretary and treasurer of the American Oil company of Long Beach, who was a spectator at the tournament and who regrets the error in awarding prizes. The letter was mailed to the judges of the floats in the Pasadena tournament of roses on January 3. Mr. Knapp says:

To the Judges of the Floats, Pasadena Tournament of Roses, Pasadena, Calif.
Gentlemen: I am writing this letter for the sole purpose of displaying the feeling of a visitor to your tournament of flowers held in your fair city yesterday. The Glendale float should have been awarded the first prize, there was never anything to equal it in all the flower parades ever held in Southern California.

And if it were possible to have taken a vote of all who saw the parade the Glendale float would carry the votes by 9 out of every 10. Anyone could see that time, labor, art and money were lavishly spent to design and build such a wonderful float.

The Portland float was only a bunch of roses so easy of design that any two people could have made the decoration in two hours. You may argue that the parade was to represent a rose tournament and they had the most roses. In that case award prizes to only floats designed of roses. And set that as a strict rule. But how foolish that would be. My favorite flower is the rose and even if I were a resident of Portland I could not beat to see the Glendale float deprived of the first prize.

Grasshoppers, Camel's Heel, Dogs, are Luxuries

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—That we are far too conservative regarding our choice of foodstuffs is evidenced by the varied selection consumed by dwellers in other lands.

There seems to be a national prejudice against certain articles of diet, which, if overcome, would lead to a more abundant food supply for an ever-increasing population.

There is nothing wrong with grasshoppers if they are prepared in the proper manner. If scriptural evidence counts for anything, they are a delectable delicacy, and permission was granted by Moses to use them as an article of food.

There are two families of these insects, brown and green. As Scripture is not a cookery recipe book, we give the following as the best method of preparation:

The crop of grasshoppers may be collected wherever found. There will be no difficulty in locating them, for the male is a loquacious insect, delighting to hear his own rasping chirp, as he scrapes one wing against the other.

The grasshoppers are then placed in a mortar and pounded with the pestle into a pulp. One quart of port wine is added, the whole being worked up to form a stiff compound. This makes a novel sandwich paste for those who like to try novel dishes. Grape juice serves the same purpose as port.

Many, of course, might prefer sandwich paste made of ants; the natives of Africa are partial to this compound. It forms an extremely nourishing dainty.

Junker, the African explorer, relates that the chief of a tribe on the Mesharch river sent him 20 hampers of dried ants for provisions of his journey.

The ants can be pounded into a paste. They have a distinctly meaty flavor, not unlike kidney or fresh mushrooms.

Moths and butterflies might not seem to us of much value as a food, but the Romans use them, as well as beetles, as an article of diet.

The Brazilians are fond of an insect that feeds on the palm-leaf.

In Chili and Peru one of the national dishes is composed of potatoes and a beetle like insect called a "chiche." It is found in large numbers under stones along the water courses.

Flies are not to be ignored in making up a list of queer things people eat. The blacks of Narragansett in Africa dine upon the larvae of a common fly, which they find under the bark of certain trees.

It is astonishing the diversity of substances in the catalogue of articles of food. Nearly every species of vertebrate animals is eaten by human beings somewhere or other.

In the Andaman Islands the eating of a live rat is deemed a test of manhood, and no man is permitted to marry until he has accomplished this feat. The Chinese are not alone in being partial to dog cutlets, for American Indians have from time immemorial been fond of this dish.

A century ago the negroes of Louisiana considered roast dog as food for the gods.

There is much to be learned from the ancients concerning food and food values. Meat, or animal flesh of all kinds was considered by the ancient athletes as the prime nourishment of their muscles, and we find camel joints, roast dromedary and donkey pie their chief meat diet of the day.

Camels' heel, canned, was the holiday feast. Donkey flesh, however, stood very high in repute as an article of household consumption. The flesh of the wild ass was regarded as surpassing in flavor the finest venison. It was no unusual undertaking to breed and fatten donkeys for the table.

Another matter which will come up Tuesday evening will be the formation of a second evening class in gymnasium work for women.

Friday afternoon the boys' basketball team of Glendale high school will play the Monrovia team at Monrovia.

If you see a small boy chasing a bee and afterward you hear yell, it's a sure sign that he caught it.

MRS. CRAIG GIVES TALK AT CHAMBER

Boy Scout Move Discussed at Recent Meeting Held Here

A very gratifying feature of the Wednesday luncheon of the chamber of commerce held at the Elizabeth hotel, was the short but interesting and enthusiastic talk made by Mrs. Craig, president of the Burbank Choral club, in which she pledged the support of the club to the work of the chamber.

The situation of the Boy Scout movement in this city was taken up at some length and a detailed talk was made by C. H. Kline, scout executive. After consideration from various points of view, it was recommended by the chamber that the boy scouts of this place go into the Glendale district which also includes Eagle Rock. This would give them the advantage of the services of a paid executive who would divide his time between the different councils.

JOHN L. SCOTT IS CALLED BY DEATH

Well Known Resident Passes at Orange Cove Home

John Louis Scott, a well-known resident of this section, having resided here for 23 years, died at his residence on Sunland avenue in Orange Cove, January 4.

The deceased was born in Wisconsin and died at the age of 65 years and 9 months. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lula M. Scott, nine children, one of whom, a daughter, resides in Los Angeles, also a brother and a sister who lives in Oregon.

XMAS WEDDING OF BURBANK COUPLE

Miss Vera Brent and, Wayland W. Wood, two well-known and popular young people of Burbank, were married on Christmas day at the home of the bride, Rev. Stephenson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. The house was adorned with holly and other seasonal decorations. Following the ceremony, a delicious dinner was served to the few intimate friends who had witnessed the nuptials. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Brent and has resided in this city for the past two years. The groom is employed with the Walker Milling company.

Another lumber yard is one of the latest business additions to Burbank. It is said that the Hammond interests are locating the yard here and that Mr. Love is to be the manager. Several lots on First street between Verdugo and Tujunga avenues have been leased for a period of years. The office is to be built facing Tujunga avenue. A few car loads of lumber are already on the ground and it is said that work on the office will begin within a few days.

Truths in Epigram

Man never falls so low that he can see nothing higher than himself. — Rarker (1810-1860).

Good Will is the mightiest practical force in the universe. — Dole (1845).

You have not converted a man because you have silenced him. — Morley (1838).

SENATOR NEWBERRY

Truman H. Newberry of Michigan goes to Washington with intent to plead his own case before the senate. He wants a seat in that body. He contends that he is entitled to it. If he shall be able to prove that he is so entitled, there can be no complaint at his acceptance. All the country desires in the matter is that justice be done. It admits doubt that justice has much of a chance, according to precedent.

The allegation is that vast sums were expended to promote the election of Newberry. It is understood that he asserts these expenditures were not made with his sanction; in fact, that his friends, seizing the opportunity when he was looking the other way, let loose the golden tide unbeknownst to him. If he rode to victory on this tide, how could he help it?

Ordinarily, a disputed seat in the senate is not awarded strictly on merit. In fact, the question of merit is not likely to come into consideration. As a rule, decision is determined by party strength, and this is the sole factor. The majority party wins.

Should Newberry be seated by a partisan vote only, this experience could not be twisted into the aspect of vindication. On the contrary it would be construed by many as equal to a verdict: "Guilty, but we don't care." He may get his seat by party vote, but for vindication he must depend upon some votes from the opposition.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION

New Year orgies opened the eyes of many people who have not been in favor of the principle of prohibition. The shameful manner in which a law embodied in the constitution was over-ridden, made them humiliated and indignant. The idea that the elements that lent themselves to a display of indecency in cities on both coasts, are so strong as to defy all restraint, to laugh drunkenly at the statutes, is not pleasing. In fact it is repellent.

In this state, where the exhibition was less nauseous than in New York, for example, the lack of enforcement, or of apparent effort at enforcement, was no less than a scandal. Robert C. Avery, in charge of the Los Angeles district, openly accuses his official superiors of having not only neglected their duties, but of giving orders directly in conflict with the performance of these duties. This is a serious matter, not to be ignored.

Most of the liquor available is poisonous. It is not such liquor as once might be procured. "Good" whisky, in the sense that it is what its purveyors declare it to be, and what the label may indicate, no longer seems to be in market. The stuff that has taken its place is dangerous. It is likely to kill on the spot. It may induce blindness. It may bring about a mental state as unreasoning as that which follows the use of drugs.

Public indignation is based upon dual ground. In the first place, to observe the constitution flouted by a crazy rabble of men and women, lost to all conception of propriety, is ominous. It indicates the blighting of that respect for law which must be at the basis of stable government.

In the second place, most of the law-breakers who are profiting by the orgies, are peddling spurious and deadly drinks. As they break the law of the land, they are robbing their victims. They become thieves by the very act of accepting money. They are potential murderers.

Questions arise, alike in the minds of the ardent prohibitionist, the reluctant prohibitionist, and the one frankly opposed to prohibition:

Are these unregenerate outlaws greater than the law? Shall rogues continue to make a mock of the constitution?

Is this a government, or a pretended government at whose mandate every knave is at liberty to twiddle his fingers?

INHERENT DECENCY

A writer explains what keeps the world from going to smash. He says that it is not policemen and laws and preachers and priests. He gives all the credit to inherent human decency.

There is much that might be said for his contention. Indeed, he himself says it. Nevertheless some of the material agencies he mentions seem to be entitled to credit. They are the visible expressions of the very decency he extols.

Doubtless there are individuals whose instincts are so largely towards goodness, that in the absence of legal restraint or moral admonition, their natural progress would tend upwards. They have an inborn hatred for evil. It repels them. Its sinister aspect appals them. They shrink from it as from something unclean.

The policeman helps retard the tendency to "go to smash" socially, for he stands for the preservation of order. His presence alone, without any call upon him for active intervention with the individuals about him, buttresses respect for the law.

Preacher and priest surely have their missions. Their value to the community is beyond estimate. It is their business to teach people to be good. Their counsel and conduct, if the twain be worthy of their high calling, must inculcate the desire to do right, arousing impulses that otherwise might have remained dormant.

"Inherent decency" is the greatest single factor perhaps in keeping the organized world functioning on a proper plane, instead of falling into chaos by going to smash. But that this gracious trait exists, does not eliminate the necessity for crystallizing its promptings into code and method.

AT LOW LEVEL

There are newspaper editors who accept as their mission the endeavor to stir up trouble. They like to have this trouble on a large scale. If they can set capital and labor to fighting, they are pleased. If they can arouse a feeling of hatred between nations, they are highly gratified. If they can induce the nations to fight, they are exalted to the climax of delight.

Happily there are but few editors of this class, but they keep very busy. At present they are trying to make England think that France contemplates an attack on British interests. Of course part of the plan is to set up the opinion in France that the great ambition of England is to swallow the French nation at a gulp.

These editors think and perform on a moral level so low that they cannot conceive the possibility of a generous act, or of a thought not wholly ignoble.

There is no doubt that the vast losses of France in the recent war, left a shattered people timorous. Above all things else, the French desire immunity from war. They are suspicious of Germany. They remember well the pelted France received from the giant guns of the Hun. They propose not to be thus pelted again; or if there is no escape from the ordeal, to be able to give as good as they get. Therefore they make some big guns of their own.

An editor of the class mentioned above—and almost at the head of the class—remarks blandly upon the ease with which shells could be dropped from France into London.

Just the cunning propaganda of a mischief maker, that's all.

An English lecturer in this country says that every American business man with an income of $10,000 should be forced to retire at fifty, and pursue a hobby. Such a man already has a hobby. He couldn't pursue it if he retired. His hobby is business.

Probably the delay in recognition of Mexico is due alone to the refusal of that country to pledge protection of vested rights. This is a pledge that other countries give freely in treaties. The United States gave it to Mexico by the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo. It seems to have been unconscious of humiliation such as Mexicans profess would be placed upon Mexico by a course precisely similar.

Several murders of the type usually ascribed to the Black Hand have occurred in Los Angeles in the last few months. This is to say, the crimes are not for robbery, not done in sudden anger, but are the result of deliberation, and for some veiled reason that in each instance has left the police groping uselessly in the dark.

Invalid soldiers resent the attempt to retire physicians of the reserve corp, now attending them, and to substitute low-priced and inexperienced civilians. Nobody will blame any wounded or suffering ex-service man for objecting to being made the goat, even for the noble purpose of economy.

Genius produces the inventions, while talent applies them.

Heroic measures are several sizes too large for the average man.

It's true, Herman; the better half of the family never knows quite as much about how the other half lives as she would like to know.

ON WANTING THINGS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One is little tempted sometimes to resent the sententious person who delivers himself of the dictum: "Want a thing enough and you will get it."

It seems like lifting one's self up by the boot straps, and sounds like some of the popular new religious cults.

But there is some intelligent content to the statement. If we will put it a little differently and say: "Know what to want and then want it," it might have more sense to it.

In fact, history bears this out.

Scientifically stated, it is found in the declaration that "function precedes faculty." That means, that as a matter of fact in the order of evolution creatures did things before they were able to do them and became able to do them only because they kept trying.

In the history of progress, inventions have usually followed the desire and need of them.

World power is measured rather by what it wants to do than what it can do.

The League of Nations is no new idea, nor is that of universal peace. It has been lurking in the human race for many a generation. The Holy Roman empire was a League of Nations, and theoretically it stood for universal peace. As a matter of fact, the Holy Roman emperors spent their time whetting their swords and strutting in their imperial jack-boots. Whereat the Holy Roman vassals would cheer in one language and go out and murder the people who spoke another language.

We speak of the "invention" of printing. But anybody might have printed from the time the first coin was struck in antiquity. The process was familiar.

William the Conqueror, being a busy man, could not always find time to lay down his sword and melt wax or lead to give authority to his conquering edicts. So he smeared a little ink on his seal and stamped it on the document.

In other words, he was carrying on the printing business in the eleventh century.

It was only when in the course of time people generally wanted printing bad enough that Coster and his fellows went to work and printed. Printing had been done three or four hundred years before in Europe and much longer ago in the Orient. The new and significant fact about their work was that people wanted it.

Horace Bushnell once preached a sermon entitled "Duty Not Measured by Ability." In fact, duty is measured by conscience. And likewise a man's efficiency is measured by his wanting power.

THE LISTENING POST

What for?
That is a very pertinent question?
You are working at a job for instance?
Which means that you have something definite to do?
What for?

It is well to stop once in a while and ask and try to answer that question.

And you may discover it is difficult to answer clearly and satisfactorily.
Is it just to make a living that you are working at a job?

If it is just to make a living, then one job is much the same as another.
For in the matter of essentials a living is about all you get out of the world anyway.
Three meals a day and a place to sleep and enough clothing to keep you comfortable and to comply with the law.

But it must be for something more than a mere living that you are working at a job.
So have you asked yourself that question.
What for?
Because that question should be answered.

Before you get to the job stage, for instance.
You are preparing for life.
Going to school or college perhaps.
Getting an education, as the saying is.
Getting learning or knowledge would be the better way of putting it.

Learning a lot of facts and dates and rules and theorems and the like.
Cramming your memory full of things.
And again comes the question:
What for?

And you reply to the question.
You want to be a doctor or a lawyer or an engineer or a member of some one of the learned professions, as they are called.
Although we confess we do not see how a profession can be learned.
It would be better to say you want to be a learned member of a profession.

And again we ask, what for?
Is it just to make a better living?
Is it to be established a little higher than your fellows in life?
Is it to be in position to command big fees?

Or, after you have got into life, you aim at a million dollars.
You want to be rich.
You want what the world terms success.
And you set out to get it.
What for?

Or you establish a business that keeps growing by leaps and bounds.
And you try to keep up with it by getting up early and working late.
And you work harder than anybody you know.
What for?

Well, you have children perhaps and you want to leave them a lot of money and insure their way through life.
You want to start them out in the world with a competence.
What for?
Again the question comes back to you.

So whether it be education or job or business or profession or whatever it is you are working at, it is well to ask once in a while, what for?
What particular thing in life are you leading up to?
And why?

You are living in the world.
Working at something.
Putting in a good many hours of the day.
Looking forward to tomorrow.
What for?

The question is asked not to disturb you.
Not to unsettle you in your work.
Not to be merely curious and inquisitive.
There is perhaps a long and opportunity-crowded future before you.
What for?
But to get you to thinking.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Motley H. Flint, banker, in a recent address told much of interest touching the moving picture industry. He takes, in part, the view of a financier. He desires to see a great and important enterprise thrive.

He says that there is no desire to finance any but the production of clean, wholesome pictures. "There are a lot of splendid people engaged in this industry," he went on. "The banking duty is to protect the industry."

This sounds much better than much of the adverse criticism emanating from thoughtless observers who regarded themselves not only as very, very good, but as profound.

Within the movies, an incident of their hasty growth, there had developed objectionable features. There have appeared in important roles, men and women who had little to commend them. In the desire for publicity, figures of no individual consequence, hangers-on, have posed as "stars" while they would have been fortunate to get a day's work "on the lot." Every girl, who by her conduct won notoriety of a rather unsavory kind, gave the information that she was "in pictures."

Moving pictures, considered as a business enterprise, are of great value to southern California. The habit of condemning the films because there have been some bad films, is unjust. The practice of condemning the personnel because the conduct of certain men and women has not been commendable, and giving no credit to the fine characters of the real stars, indicates narrow prejudice.

The public may have as good pictures as it demands. The best producers and the best actors and actresses are in favor of clean pictures. Personal attributes constitute an equation not to be ignored. Arbuckle did not know this until he had made the test. His experience must have been enlightening to others, as most surely it was to the comedian himself. He is "out of it." Those who dwell at the level he chooses, are certain to follow him.

Representative Johnson has introduced a bill for restoration of certain government publications, printing of which was suspended by the war. It is doubtful if the concern he thus manifests is felt keenly by the people of the country at large. In fact, most of them became aware of the publications in question only when the order to stop printing was issued by congress. The great majority never saw the publications. The great majority of those who did see them, wondered mildly what they were for, and treated them as junk.

Johnson seems to have forgotten that there is an era of economy in full swing.

It is said that there are 18,000 abandoned farms in Michigan. If this is true, it presents a singular economic fact. It is far from clear why anybody should feel an impulse to desert a farm in the real agricultural area. The lure of the city call has been permitted to have undue influence. A farmer who owns his land can make a living in good times or in bad. Going to a new field and a different activity, he has no assurance of equal good fortune.

Abandonment of New England farms as the tide of migration turned westward, was not singular. Their lack of productive capacity, and the fertile lands awaiting the toiler elsewhere, afforded the necessary explanation. But crops grow in Michigan, and the field that yields nothing but enough stone for a fence around itself, is not known there.

At this writing there has been no reputable evidence produced to verify the charges of Senator Watson. These charges are that American officers overseas shot or hanged soldiers at will, apparently as a form of diversion.

From remote districts ex-soldiers have been procured to sustain the tale that executions, with or without trial, were common. The testimony of these witnesses does not bear analysis. Some of them had been slackers in the war zone, and subjected to discipline. Others owing to shellshock, are in pitiful mental condition, their shattered minds unable to differentiate fact and fantasy.

Every American citizen knows soldiers who were at the front. He knows them as honorable men who did their duty. They are not the sort who would have kept silent had they been commanded by officers whose regular amusement was a murder carnival. Perhaps they would be better witnesses than Watson has succeeded in rounding up.

District Attorney Woolwine, on whose character and conduct in office, certain members of the grand jury sought to make assault, has been sustained by a majority of that body. The outcome is not surprising. The effort to weaken and malign an official even now engaged in the performance of important duties, was surprising.

Woolwine has enemies. Some of them are in jail. Some are out. Some who are out, ought to be in. There is a criminal gang anxious to discredit him. Its members have a potent influence. They have lawyers hired to protect them against the penalty of their acts. The attitude of the criminals is logical enough. The attitude of the lawyers who serve the criminals is explained by the fees. That these elements of evil could have engaged the co-operation of politicians, or of an apparently respectable citizenship, remains a puzzle.

When a married couple who conducted a store had a quarrel, the court advised that a chalk line be drawn down the middle of the establishment, and each conduct half the business. The man objected. He said there would be nothing to prevent his wife from throwing portable furniture across the line.

Perhaps Solomon would have known what to do in such a case.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

My friend the banker says he has about concluded to change his mind. He doesn't like to do it, he says, not only because bankers are presumably always right and to admit that he has been wrong is embarrassing, but also because it involves a concession that women have as good business sense as men.

"Sometimes they have, anyhow," he says. "I will not go any farther just now."

For the past year he has had one of our brightest young business men not only on but in his books. The bright young business man was the head salesman of a company that made oodles of money during the war. He is bright, all right, but he had nothing to do with that fact. The business came to his company faster than he could turn it away. As he worked on a bonus arrangement, he found himself with fifty thousand dollars' worth of liberties in the tea-kettle two years ago. Likewise, he had three cars and his wife had a mitful of platinum junk. So he went into business of his own.

"I've been held down," he told the banker. "I have ideas about business, which is more than most business men have. I am a coming man."

He came for awhile, because his new proposition was a good one and then he hit the slides. Last week the banker called him in.

"I will not renew your loans," he said. "Pare your proposition down to hard-pan, get in all the money you can, and down to business. You will come out on top in the end, but from now on you are on a street car instead of a three-car basis."

The bright young business man would not do it. He still had some liberties he could put up, he said, and he would not submit to the banker's dictation. So the banker sent—quite unbeknownst to the bright young business man—for the B. Y. M.'s wife to come in and meet her husband in the banker's office. He went over her husband's affairs with her, and when a banker takes the trouble to go over another man's affairs he does it like a road roller over a dime. Then he asked her what she thought of it.

"I shall bring in my jewelry tomorrow," she said. "Get what you can on it. Our three cars will be advertised for sale tonight. I did not know what our financial position is, for my husband had never told me."

The banker says that the B. Y. M. will pull out of the hole. He can sell goods, he is a happy sort of a party, and he really is a hustler. But of the two, he says, the better business man is the wife.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Twilight—By Mary F. Robinson (1857)

When I was young the twilight seemed too long.
How often in the western window-seat
I leaned my book against the misty pane
And spelled the last enchanting lines again,
The while my mother hummed an ancient song.
Or sighed a little and said: "The hour is sweet!"
When I, rebellious, clamored for the light.

But now I love the soft approach of night,
And now with folded hands I sit and dream
While all too fleet the hours of twilight seem;
And thus I know that I am growing old.

On granaries of Age! O manifold
And royal harvest of the common years!
There are in all thy treasure-house no ways
But lead by soft descent and gradual slope
To memories more exquisite than hope.
Thine is the Iris born of olden tears,
And thrice more happy are the happy days
That live divinely in the lingering rays.

CHAPTER C. J. HAS "HUSBAND" PARTY

One of the most enjoyable events in the history of Chapter C. J. P. E. O., occurred Saturday evening, when the members gave a party for their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Putman, 208 West Elk avenue. The brilliantly lighted living room with its beautiful decorations of yellow flowers was soon filled with a gay party. At 6:30 a delicious dinner was served, the tables being beautifully decorated with marigolds. The gentlemen's place cards were red and the ladies' yellow. After the dinner had been served the gentlemen adjourned to the library while the ladies prepared the living room for the initiation of the B. I. L. or "brothers-in-law." To the strains of "Three Blind Mice" played by Mrs. H. V. Brown, Mrs. Roy Kent led the men into the presence of the chapter, where they were fully initiated into the order of B. I. L. which is "brothers-in-law" to the P. E. O., their badge being a large tin star with the letters B. I. L. painted beautifully with black stove polish. After the initiation the gentlemen were called upon to make speeches and each responded with a few more or less appropriate remarks. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing, playing games and various stunts and at a late hour the guests departed feeling that it had been a most delightful evening. Guests of the chapter, besides the members' husbands were Mrs. C. D. Cady, Mrs. Berry, Miss Grace Crampton, and Miss Agnes Brown.

MRS. SHRIVER, HOSTESS TO NEIGHBORS

Mrs. Clarence Shriver, of 126 East Park avenue entertained with a neighborhood party on Friday afternoon.

The guests included Mrs. Power, Mrs. J. Collins, Mrs. Harriett M. Jewell, Mrs. Mary E. Brode, Mrs. John A. Logan, Mrs. O. M. Carpenter and Mrs. Mary S. Milligan. The guests enjoyed an afternoon of games followed by a dainty refreshment course.

THEATER PARTY BY RUTH SPAFFORD

A very pleasant theater party was given Saturday afternoon by Miss Ruth Spafford of Los Angeles, formerly of Glendale, in honor of Miss Mildred McKee, who left Sunday for Berkeley, where she will resume her studies.

The party attended "A Prince There Was" at the Morosco and took lunch afterwards. The guests included the guest of honor, Miss Mildred McKee, Mrs. Gust Lavison, Mrs. Irvin L. Bullock, Miss Ruth Ryan and the hostess, Miss Ruth Spafford.

BIRTHDAY PARTY BY MRS. SALMACIA

A surprise birthday dinner was given Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salmacia, of 361 West California avenue, in honor of Mr. Salmacia's father, Vincent Salmacia, Sr.

Red and green were used in decorating and the guests for the day were Mr. and Mrs. William Holze, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Wilkinson and daughter Elizabeth, Arthur Schuster, all of Los Angeles, Vincent Salmacia, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Salmacia, Jr., and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salmacia. A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed.

Pleasing Program For W. C. T. U. Anniversary

A large gathering of greatly interested members was present at the celebration of the 17th anniversary of the organization of the Glendale W. C. T. U., which took place at the home of Mrs. T. L. Brown on North Louise, Friday afternoon.

The cozy bungalow was artistically decorated with greenery, potted plants and bouquets of poinsettias. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Ruby Smart, Mrs. Edith Dockeray, vice-president, conducted the meeting.

The opening song, "Work for Enforcement Where You Are," was lustily sung by all present. Mrs. C. A. Brandstater, who led the devotion, selected a number of passages from the Psalms which she expounded. She emphasized the importance of prayer and of meeting with the Lord in the Lord in the morning while the Lord is still fresh. The several texts exhorted to righteousness, self-sacrifice, and obedience as the highest form of worship.

Mrs. Marie M. Yeomans, county president, who was a special guest, offered an inspiring prayer. Mrs. Retta T. Nelson favored the company with an appropriate solo and graciously responded to the call for an encore, being accompanied upon the piano by Mrs. W. J. Johnson.

The regular routine of business was transacted including the reading of minutes and the call for new members, and Mrs. Dockeray gave an excellent report of the open noon and evening was spent in playing cards. Mrs. Salmacia was assisted by Mrs. Vincent Salmacia, Jr.

MRS. EMMA REID TO GIVE LECTURE

At this week's meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club, Mrs. Emma J. Reid will lecture on "Social Magnetics." She is described as a student, teacher and club woman.

Her subject concerns certain laws and manifestations of psychology which are of practical educational value, and her talk is certain to increase interest in the great planetary forces which are said to affect our daily activities. The lecture will be out of the beaten path and should prove stimulating.

MRS. VAN LOAN HAD CHARGE MEET

Owing to the ill health of Dr. Julius Soper, superintendent of the local inter-church work on behalf of the Japanese, Mrs. Van Loan took charge of the program and presided at the meeting of Japanese residents held Saturday night at the Tropic Presbyterian church.

The chief speaker of the evening was Rev. O'Gawa, pastor of the Union Japanese church of Los Angeles, who dwelt on the beneficial effects of the peace conference at Washington which had brought about a better understanding between the United States and Japan. Such great things as world peace, he said, originated in dreams in forum of the Tuesday Afternoon club.

Rev. Mrs. F. E. Logie sang very beautifully a soldier's campfire song which was the more impressive because it included verses from "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," which all joined in singing.

Miss Viora Glassey, the mascot of the union, gave a reading entitled "What Bob Said."

An unique feature of the program was a "chapter of experiences" in which each was asked to tell when she joined the organization and the benefits she had derived from her membership. From the latest member to those who had belonged for 35 years, one and all expressed themselves as highly honored in having been enrolled in such an organization—the largest union of women in the world—and the speakers related early experiences in the work, its hardships, its sorrows, its benefits and blessings, which has crowned the union as a leading factor in securing the 18th amendment to the federal constitution.

Mrs. L. E. Brown of Sycamore canyon was the only charter member present. Mrs. Marie Yeomans, county president, as a veteran in the work, was the last to tell her experiences in joining the organization. She attributed whatever success she had to the training she had received in the W. C. T. U.

Following the program there was a social hour during which the hostess served tea and cake.

the mind of those who have the vision before they can become a reality. Mr. O'Gawa spoke in Japanese.

Rev. Louis Tinning of the Glendale Presbyterian church gave a talk on the parable of the sower, which Mr. O'Gawa interpreted. Mrs. Jodon and Mrs. Floyd Mercer sang a duet, and Miss Nellie Rowe contrived a couple of readings. Mrs. Stoler was heard in a vocal solo.

ENTERTAIN GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Seibert of 333 West Doran street, entertained with an automobile trip to Orange Mr. and Mrs. W. Ball of Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartman of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. T. Evans and Mr. and Mrs. George Hyne of Los Angeles.

It was immensely enjoyed by the Cincinnati guests who are touring the state and will return by way of the Panama canal, leaving California about the 25th of January.

MR. AND MRS. MERCER HOSTESSES ON SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Mercer entertained on Sunday, Miss Mary Stangler of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mercer of Montana who recently came to Glendale to live, and Miss Eula Stevenson, at dinner.

The party was joined in the afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Spicer of San Fernando. Mrs. George Mercer has been suffering with neuritis for the past week.

INVITE SHELTON GIRLS TO GLENDALE

One of the divisions of the Women's Missionary Society of the Central Christian church, headed by Mrs. Creel and Mrs. Switzer, had a meeting Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fannie Stone on East Chestnut street when plans were made for their February programs.

A decision was reached to invite the Shelton girls of Pomona to come to Glendale and give an address before the church under the auspices of the division. A majority of the members of the division were present and organization was effected with every prospect of good work for the coming season.

NAME DATE FOR BIG CARD PARTY

Monday afternoon, January 23, is the date set for the big card party for which Mrs. John Robert White is opening her hospitable home at the corner of Orange and Lexington. It will be a benefit for the local Federation of Parent-Teacher associations, and the tickets will be $1.

It will be a brilliant social affair with prizes offered and refreshments served, the most prominent women of the city being patronesses. Though put on by the P. T. A. it is not confined to that organization but will be open to all who enjoy auction bridge or five hundred.

A bumptious young American farmer went to England to learn his business, but where he went he pretended that it was far easier to teach the farmers than to learn anything from them.

"I've got an idea," he said one day to a grizzled old Northumbrian agriculturist, "for a new kind of fertilizer which will be 10,000 times as effective as any that has ever been tried. Condensed fertilizers—that's what it is. Enough for an acre of ground would go in one of my vest pockets."

A few more adult pupils can be received into the Ballroom Dancing Class held by Mrs. Nanno Woods every Wednesday evening at her beautiful home, 122 West Milford. A nice way to meet nice people. Course of ten class lessons, $6.50. Private lessons by appointment any time. Phone Glen. 594.—Adv.

Total 20.33
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turk of Glendale were guests at the La Crescenta hotel Sunday.

Mrs. L. A. Potter and Mrs. Richard Stine entertained the Missionary society of the Community church at luncheon at the home of Mrs. Stine on Mayfield avenue last Friday. Places were marked for 16. A very interesting program was given during the afternoon. Mrs. D. E. Wetherbee read a letter from Rev. Harry Brown, who is now stationed in India. Mrs. A. H. Kelso gave an interesting talk on China and Mrs. E. Angier on "Work in the Home Mission Field."

Mrs. Charles Bowden visited friends in Los Angeles for the week-end.

Mrs. A. H. Kelso's Sunday school class gave the opening exercises at the Community church yesterday morning, which consisted of singing and responsive reading by the class, a violin solo by Emmet Steere and a recitation by Lawrence Potter, which was followed by the usual Sunday services with the pastor, Rev. A. H. Kelso, in the pulpit.

Misses Virginia and Dorothy Kiefer entertained a group of young friends last Friday night at a party pull. The guests included Misses Caroline Erhardt, Janet Culberson, Sara and Jessie Conlin, Sybil and Louella Grimes and Elizabeth Jones; Messrs. Schofield, Kappel, Robert and Donald Hendrix, Waltz Young, Carol Foy, Ernest Erhardt and William Eastman.

Messrs. Tyler Smith, H. S. Bissell, F. H. Anderson, W. Hickey and H. R. Tritt were guests of Mrs. Tritt's sister, Mrs. C. Cruzen of Alhambra, last Friday.

The meeting of the La Crescenta Women's club at the school auditorium next Wednesday will be guest day and particularly interesting as Miss Gertrude Darlow of the Los Angeles library will give the program.

The many friends of Mrs. M. D. Kemper, who has been ill for many weeks, will be happy to know she is now recovered.

Funeral services of Jack H. Rounsee were held at the Little Church of the Flowers at Forest Lawn last Friday afternoon, the Glendale lodge No. 1289 B. P. O. E. officiating. Mr. Rounsee was the resident manager of the La Crescenta Mutual Water Co. for the past ten years and has many friends who mourn his untimely death.

NEW OFFICERS IN LA CRESCENTA CLUB

LA CRESCENTA, Jan. 9.—At the regular monthly meeting of the La Crescenta Improvement association the following officers were installed for the year: H. F. K. Czerniski, president; Mrs. C. J. O'Potts, first vice-president; T. O. Potts, secretary; George Dunlop, treasurer. The association has more than doubled its membership during the past year and the many improvements in the valley are credited to the efforts of F. K. Czerniski and C. E. Culberson, the officers of the association, the past year.

BOY IS STRICKEN

STAMFORD, Conn., Jan. 9.—Ralph Prescott, 13, of Los Angeles, is in the Stamford hospital in a critical condition from lack of food and exposure. Prescott said he was employed in a restaurant in Worcester, Mass., when he lost his position; he started to walk home. He stopped in Stamford and was answering a help wanted ad when he was stricken ill.

NOT A DETAIL OF BEAUTY OR COMFORT has been overlooked in the building and furnishing of the charming home which JAMES W. PEARSON of 108 N. Brand Blvd. showed me today! The eight beautiful rooms are ideally arranged for a large family—and finished throughout in exquisite old-ivory! A glance through the glass doors of the beautifully furnished and inviting living room reveals the attractive dining room; where a novel idea has been introduced in the building-in of a wonderful buffet and a lovely china closet—both of old-ivory. In this room as well as the living room, the furnishings are in excellent taste, combining the harmonious blue tones with walnut dining table and chairs! There is a lovely little breakfast room, cheerfully papered and attractively furnished in wicker—and oh! so sunny! Veritable visions of loveliness I'd call the beautiful bedrooms which number three! But to Milady the lovely dressing room which connects the front bedrooms will be a joy! On the one side is built a charming dressing table and on the other a well arranged closet, whose door is the inspiration for a full length mirror! Then, to be sure, there's a complete kitchen, a lovely sun porch, laundry, large yard with lawn and trees and a garage! Besides every possible convenience in attractive built-in features it is furnished completely from exquisite dishes and silver to an electric washer, vacuum, phonograph and lamps. Just as it is, ready to occupy, the sale price is $14,500, but if you prefer to furnish, the house may be bought for $12,500! It is a home beautifully appointed and furnished to the most minute detail! But it must be seen to be appreciated. Call Mr. Pearson today and ask to see it!

GLENDALE PLUMBING CO.
P. J. Sheehy, Manager
SANITARY AND HEATING ENGINEERS
134 South Orange Phone Glendale 885

IT'S A JOY TO TRANSACT one's business with Mr. Sheehy of the GLENDALE PLUMBING CO. of 134 South Orange Street. You know, he is always so interested in seeing that everyone's own individual troubles are properly cared for—that it is a relief to know he's superintending the installation of your plumbing! It is so much better, I think, to put the proposition entirely in the hands of a reliable firm such as the Glendale Plumbing Co. and let them go over and inspect the whole plumbing system—before calling a plumber—and then it's too late for the damage has been done—and it's doctor bills that must be paid. If you did but realize it, the health of your whole family depends on the sanitation of your plumbing—it's positively the most important part of your building! The Glendale Plumbing Co. carry a full line of attractive and up-to-date fixtures for the bath—at reasonable prices! Call Mr. Sheehy and let him estimate your work, first!

The fullness of skirts is often laid to pleats or arranged in godets at other side of the front, leaving the back plain. Bodices may show the softly bloused effects which give an indefinite line to the figure. Sleeves vary in treatment, some afternoon and evening gowns showing shoulder caps while other types of models feature full length sleeves.

PUT ON "YOUR OLD GREY BONNET," my dear, and hurry right down to the YARBROUGH HAT SHOPPE, 108 W. Broadway—yes, they're having a SALE! Mrs. Yarbrough has marked every trimmed and tailored hat in the store down just 25 per cent! Imagine it—25 per cent reduction on every hat in the shop—regardless of cost and materials. It is indeed a wonderful opportunity for you to buy several stunning models for the regular price of one—so it's well worth your while to go there early! Yes, and it's at the Yarbrough Hat Shoppe that Mrs. Nigh has opened La Vanity Shoppe for mannequing and marcel waving! She does excellent work—and her prices are exceptionally reasonable! Then, too, there is a hemstitcher at Mrs. Yarbrough's Shoppe, so if you've a gown or combination to be hemstitched or picot edged—just leave it at 108 W. Broadway. Service and Quality is the keynote of the Yarbrough Hat Shoppe!

Laundry is used in so many colors nowadays that one wonders that it was ever an oddity to see blue and green lace, pink lace and yellow lace. Chantilly and flet lace are perhaps the most usually dyed of all kinds.

YOU'LL WANT TO IMPROVE the minutes—of course, and how better than by learning to make those adorable knitted or crocheted sweaters and dresses? The ART NEEDLE SHOP, 209 East Broadway, have a professional teacher for crocheting and knitting, who holds classes every Tuesday and Thursday. It is in the hemstitching shop, so stop in and ask about it!

At the Atlantic City demonstration thirty-six foot power driven lifeboats communicated easily with the shore while five miles out at sea. Such communication was made possible by the use of a loop or roller antenna. An aerial antenna is impossible on the lifeboats because everything above decks must be clear for line throwing and because of the heavy weather encountered.

NEW DAY DAWNS IN SPIRITUAL LIFE

The Sunday morning service at the First Methodist church was the culmination of the whirlwind campaign which started Thursday evening, January 5, with a banquet attended by 400 members of the church. The spectacular auditorium of the church was packed to the limit of its present capacity to hear Dr. James Allen Geissinger who has been on the job from the start, and who was introduced by the pastor, Dr. Clyde M. Crist, as the speaker of the morning.

The subject of his masterly discourse was "A New Day for the Spiritual Life of the World," the text being from the eighth chapter of Romans. "For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

His remarks were in part as follows: "It seems to me that there has never been a time in the world when it was so easy to preach as it is now. I bring you a great text this morning and whether you will get anything out of the sermon or not, remember there is a great word of men whose lives are linked to it. I am going to prove that we are in the midst of a great increase of power and that thus we can carry on the great Christian enterprises. The whole message rings with optimism. We see Jesus and the promise of Christianity for all men. He is able to save, if we could only get that thought. He is able to save to the uttermost."

Don't go around with a chip on your shoulder if you want people to slap you on your back.

MONTE HUCKSHORN AFFAIR MOVING TO SOUTHLAND

Attorney Discounts Legal Marriage to Linen
Expert

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—The scene of an unusual human triangle today shifted from San Francisco to Los Angeles with the arrival of Philip S. Whitney, wealthy Kansas City broker; Jean E. Crean, expert on fine lines, and Monte Huckshorn, alleged common-law wife of the former and sweetheart of the latter.

Crean was said to have "rescued" Miss Huckshorn from Whitney's apartments in San Francisco. Whitney is held under $500 bond. Hymen Schwartz, Whitney's attorney, said today that he believed the common-law marriage of Whitney and Miss Huckshorn valid under the laws of Missouri. Schwartz discounted an assertion that Crean had married the girl following the San Francisco episode.

"Crean has a wife, who is now in Buffalo, according to reliable information," Schwartz asserted.

HACKENSCHMIDT VICTORIOUS TWICE

Glendale's own wrestler, John Hackenschmidt, won his first match with Jack McDonald, Canadian heavyweight wrestling champion in Pasadena Saturday night. He won it once, turned around and won it the second time just to make the decision good and prove to the audience that he could do it.

From the moment the wrestlers entered the ring, Hackenschmidt seemed to have the edge on McDonald and had no trouble in getting out of any hold the Canadian secured. The first fall was won in about 30 minutes with a double bar arm hold. The second was won by "Hack" in 12 minutes with the toe hold.

After the first fall McDonald refused to go on with the match, saying that he was not down for three seconds, the prescribed time for a fall. During the argument Hackenschmidt retired to his dressing room and announced that he could throw him again. He said that he was even willing to give McDonald the best of the break, consider the fall as out, and enter the ring with no falls to his credit.

McDonald agreed to go on and finish the bout if the fall would not be counted against him. In 12 minutes after they re-entered the ring Hackenschmidt had McDonald on the floor and at his mercy. He had the toe held on him.

Plans for a return match between the two are being discussed and if it is arranged it is assured that it will be held in Glendale if the promoters have to build an arena. Announcement will be made in the Glendale Daily Press as soon as details are arranged.

STORM PICTURES IN STORE WINDOW

Geo. A. Whitaker, proprietor of the Broadway Pharmacy, corner East Broadway and Kenwood, has some very interesting pictures of the havoc wrought by the December storms in Worcester county, Mass., on display in his windows. It makes the people of Glendale fully appreciate the fact that regardless of the very unusual rains experienced here recently, that after all Glendale is the only place for real comfort and satisfied living. Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker are both natives of Worcester, and can fully appreciate the difference between the weather in the two places.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel
Backache or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poisons, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Advt.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE NEWCOMER

Come in, you little rascal, with your smiles and with your tears,
Come here and I'll shake hands with you, you youngest of the years,
We've got to be together till the short life of you ends,
You've got to be my comrade, so we might as well be friends.
I've known your elder brothers, near some fifty I may say,
They've come at night, as you have, and at night they've gone away.
And some were sweet, some bitter, some I cherish, some I rue,
And I wonder at your coming, how I'll get along with you.

Come in, you midnight prowler—yes, I knew you were about,
Waiting for my door to open and I could not keep you out;
Come in and make you welcome, for the little time you'll stay,
I might as well be gracious for you'll come in anyway.
I'll stir the fire a little so the room be warm and nice,
But please, New Year, remember that I don't want good advice,
Just clap me on the shoulder as a man should greet a man,
And tell me you'll be friendly and as kindly as you can.

I don't want you to wake me at the dawn of this new morn
With a lot of resolutions—why, you've only just been born,
And you never barked your shin-bones and you've never skinned your nose,
You've never done a day's work or earned a suit of clothes.
You're oozing with much wisdom—yes, you are you new-born elf,
But I'll thank you to be merciful and keep it to yourself.
Did you see that gray old fellow that you passed out in the hall?
Well, he's learned a lot of wisdom for he didn't talk at all.

Now listen, you young upstart, and remember when you do
I am older by some fifty years, much older, yes, than you;
You'll need a lot of patience with this troubled world of ours,
And don't begin by thinking that its pathway is all flowers.
Be gentle and forgiving and don't think you know it all,
Be wise as that old fellow that you passed out in the hall.
He blustered in, like you did, but he went out pretty wise,
With the tenderest expression in his understanding eyes!

GRINS AND GROANS

Arthur Burch said he didn't try to smash his head in the county jail. He said, "It's all bunk." He said his foot slipped. That's what District Attorney Woolwine is trying to prove on Arthur, too.

KEEPING HER HEAD
He turned solicitously from the wheel. "Don't you feel a little chilly?" he tenderly inquired. "Don't you think you'd better have something around you?"
"Well," she replied, "let's wait till we get a little farther out in the country."

Henry George, British feminist, says girls should marry men between 35 and 45. Too late Henry men get sensible themselves between 35 and 45 and then it's too late for the girls. After a man gets around 55 to 65, back to childhood, then is when the doll-babies shine.

The moon will be full on Friday next, the 13th. Superstitiously inclined people will make note and let their consciences be their guide.

PAST GRADUATES
Irate Gopher—You must take your children away from here, madam! This is no place for them. Mother—Now don't worry—they can't 'ear nothin' new—their father was a sergeant-major, 'e was.

The only safe prediction for the Glendale weather man to make nowadays is "rain or shine."

See a picture in the city papers of Gene Debs embracing and kissing his brother. Parley vue France, Gene?

"NICE DOGGIE!"

She was giving orders at an express rate, for they were married, and he, as a rule one of the most meek and submissive of men, was like the proverbial worm beginning to turn.

"Do you think," he sneered, "that you rule the universe?"
"No," she snapped, "but I rule the first letter of it."

It is a mean trick, but it can't be helped. Jesse Smith's 2-year-old heiress runs to the door every time she hears a Ford "whistle." She thinks it's "daddy" coming home. When Margaret gets a little older she will find that men are more or less deceitful wretches anyhow, all except "daddy" of course.

VETERANS VISIT WHITTIER'S POST

Commander T. C. Fuller, of N. P. Banks post, this city, motored to Whittier January 6, taking with him Comrades Hull, Collins and Scudder. After considerable tire trouble they arrived in time to participate in the exercises conducted by the officers of the post and corps at Whittier, and for the mid-day feast. The trip was ideal in every way and was enjoyed to an extent possible only to actual participants in the bloody scenes of the great war of the Rebellion.
